of his color was to be pited. In its efforts to belittle the thirteenth amendment the supreme court had been driven to the absurdinconsistency of declaring by implication that until the passage of the fourteenth amendment it was within the power of the states to hunt down and murder colored men without any process of law. The supreme court had declared that congress could not legislate to maintain the civil rights bill until the states had taken some action adverse to the rights given the colored man by that bill. It was only necessary for the states to keep still and take no action, and the only redress a citizen had was in a suit at common law and if the state courts hold that this refusal of common carriers and inukeepers to grant equal rights to the colored man is simply a social mat er, and not one for them to decide, what redress does the citizen have?

In the opinion of the supreme court as recently premulgated there occurred these words:

There are certain physiological differences of recently grant to be inverted. of his color was to be pitel. In its efforts to words:

There are certain physiological differences of race that cannot be ignored.

In the printed opinion of the court these words had been omitted; and yet they should be regarded as a shining lamp, in the light of which the whole decision should be carefully scanned. Yet this supreme court had held that the constitution had always are that where the constitution had given general powers to congress, that general language was sufficient to clothe that body with plenary powers of legislation.

What could be more general than the language of the amendment, which was that congress shall have the power to enforce their provisions by appropriate legislation. Congress had endeavored to do this, but the supreme court shifts off on another track, and says wait till the states do something. The absurd reduction had gone on until the highest tribunal in the land had declared, first, that the states have no right to legislate in any way in regard to these constitutional amendments, and then the superson has no right to legislate. gard to these constitutional amendments, and then that congress has no right to legislate until the states shall have legislated. This was the reculiar method that the court adopted to demonstrate its great consistency and its powerful respect for the force of its own opinions. The question had been asked if this legislation was permitted to stand, why was it not proper for congress to go on and legislate for the maintainance of any other right? Legislation would only go on while such distinctions were uplied, and when all men were allowed the privileges and immunities conferred upon them by the fundamental law then no further legislation would be needed. To preserve liberty is the only excuse for governments. Liberty was only excuse for governments. Liberty was the one priceless jewel of soul. It was the plant, bad, flower, and fruit, and in that word is comprised all that makes life worth the living.

The decision of the supreme court had

The decision of the supreme court had warmed into new life the serpent of state rights, and in cause of civilization versus barbarism it had granted to the defendant a new trial. John M. Harlan had the moral courage to dissent from this and to break away from prejudice and maintain patriotism. The next view of this question was that it was a social matter. In the old days, in every well organized democratic prodays, in every well organized democratic pro-cession, there was a four-horse wagon with a score of ancient maidens who bore a banner with the device, "White husbands or none." This was the bue and cry now. It was simply a question of equal rights under the law. No man could afford to oppress his fellow man and hope to prosper. He, himself, had rather be oppressed than to oppress others; to be robbed rather than to be a thief. No two men were equal. No two anythings were allke except, perhaps, the opinions of two idiots who believed this decision to be just. The man who hates the back man because he is black is equal to him who interest a poor man because he is poor.

'this was easte, and easte was an outgrowth of this messness trait that ever found a home in the fin can heart. It was only necessary for the black man to be true to himself and exercise his rights at the ballot box.

The republican party had been one of queer inputers, and it would be proper to wait and see whether it indersed this unrighteous decision of the supreme court before the full responsibility was laid upon its shoulders. It had been a party in the past made up of queer exements, courage and cowardice, enthus i on and apathy.

thus i sm and apathy.

The colored people were only anxious to bury their past injuries and go on in the march of progress; to raise their race to a peint where they would be entitled to the same consideration that humanity extends to all men, and in this they had the hearty countenance and support of the best men of the country, living and dead. Throughout his remarks the lecturer was most enthusinstically applauded, and at the conclusion was warmly congratulated by these around him.

He Elcked Against the Dog Tax.

A curious incident happened in the collector's office on Thursday. The investigations into the matter of unlicensed dogs by the police has resulted in a record of every one who keeps a dog, and the practice new is, when making out the bill for taxes to add the dog tax where the party is liable. One of the earliest visitors to the assessor's office, after asking for his bill, was questioned by the clerk:

'You have a dog, haven't you?" "Yes; two of them," was the reply, not suspecting why the question was asked. When he received his bill he rushed round When he received his bill he rushed round into the collector's office with the money in his hand to pay the taxes on his property, but on looking at his bill was surprised to find an additional $4 for two dogs. He violently protested against this; said he would pay his real estate tax, but he'd be—blessed if he would pay the dog tax.

Collector Cook said the bill could not be receipted without the tull amount of tax called for, and he wedged his way out of the crowd for, and he wedged his way out of the crowd swearing and fuming. As he got to the door he discovered that a $20 bill which he had in his hand had been dropped or abstracted during his excitement. At any rate he didn't find the bill; so he was $20 out, beside being compelled to pay his dog tax.

THE SUFFRAGE MOVEMENT.

Meeting of the Executive Committee Last Night-Full List of the Members-Addresses Made.

Clapp, submitted the names of the executive committee, as completed by the addition of fifteen names, increasing it to thirty-one members. It was read by the secretary, Mr. William Dickson, as follows: Hon. A. M. Clapp, John G. Berrett, A. C. Richards, E. D. Wright, Judge T. J. Mackey, J. P. Klingle, J. H. Crane, Capt. A. Grant, W. W. Holland, James Coleman, J. S. Worthington, Maj. H. A. Hall, Lewis Clephane, Surgeon General J. B. Hamilton, Dr. J. Lew Adams, Gen. E. W. Whitaker, Howard C. Claggett, Prof. J. M. Gregory, R. H. Helm, Evening Critic; A. M. Brant, Perry Carson, R. W. Fenwick, C. M. Earten, A discussion ensued on the adoption of a petition to be presented to the people of this city for their signatures, during which Mr. James Coleman stated that the petition should be signed by a majority of the citizens. The district is now controlled by corporations. The Baltimore and Ohio and the Baltimore district is now controlled by corporations. The l'altimore and Ohio and the Baltimore and Potomae railways and the gas companies now enjoy the rights which belong to the people by inheritance. The residents of South Washington are aggreed by a monopoly, but cannot find redress. The commissioners have no hesitancy in using the monarchial phrase, "What are you going to do about it?" when they negative an appeal for justice. The people of the District of Columbra are governed by the most oppressive government under the sun, and what they want is immediate relief. most oppressive government under the sun, and what they want is immediate relief. The people of the United States do not know of the condition of affairs here. They should be onlightened by the correspondents and writers who abound at the national capital and represent newspapers in so many cities. Judge Mackey said no people ever strived for their rights without antagenizing their rulers. He pointed out the causes which led to the revolutionary war as an instance of that fact. "The little finger of a single railway corporation," he said, "is greater than the entire ribs of the people of the district. The question of a change, and the fact that an army officer is one of our rulers, will be presented to a congress composed of many men who have heard the bugle biast in the halls and rooms of their legislative buildings" wan have heard the ongle brast in the main and rooms of their legislative buildings."

Capi, Grant said a large majority of the citizens are anxious to sign the petition when it is prescrited to them, and favored immediate action. Surgeon General Hamilton spoke of the question under discussion and favored a brief and concise petition, with the bare statement that nearly 200,000 citizens are disfranchised Mr. Clapp said "we want to see this dis-triet rehabilitated with freedom and the rights of suffrage restored before we go to our final rest."

The following gentlemen were appointed a committee to frame the congressional memo-rial: Hon. A. M. Clapp, Maj. Hall, Wm. Dick-son, Perry H. Carson, Judge Mackey, and Surgeon General Hamilton.

Each member of the executive committee was instructed to report at the next meeting the names of four canynasers for each of the the names of four canvassers for each of the several wards to circulate the petitions.

The chairman announced the following finance committee: Dr. E. A. Adams, Gen. Whittaker, Dr. Gunnell, and Surgeon General Hamilton. The treasurer's report showed a healthy financial condition.

The subcommittee will present the printed memorials at the next meeting, and the work of canvassing will begin in carnest.

Gen. Sherman's Departure. Gen. Sherman left this city for Philadelphia at 4:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Ex-Secretary Evarts happened to be going to New York on the same train, and the two met at York on the same train, and the two met at the depot and boarded the train together, accompanied by Col. Bacon, one of the aids whom the general retains until his retirement in February next. Col. Tourtelotte, the other aid, followed the general on another train. There was no one at the depot to take leave of the general, and very few people knew that he was going so soon, it having been announced that he would remain in Washington several days. The general will visit his daughter, Mrs. Thackara, in Philadelphia for a short time. Then he will make a short visit in New York, and from there he will go to his home in St. Louis to remain.

COALITIONISTS OF ARLENGTON.

A Large Meeting Addressed by Gen. Raum and Mesers. Hawkhurst and Reeves.

A well attended coalition queeting was held at Johnson's hall, near Affington post-office. Va., last night. Addresses were made by Gon. Oreen B. Raum and Messrs. Hawx-bright at Association hall, 632 Pennsylvania avenue. The chairman, Hon. A. M. Clapp, submitted the names of the executive by Gen. Green B. Raum and Messrs. Hawxhurst and Reeves, candidates respectively for senator and member of house of delegates.

The hall was packed, the larger portion of those present being colored men.
Gen. Kaum spoke for more than an hour.
He compared the two parties and their respective records, showing what the bourbons had not done for the state and its people, and what the coalitionists had done for every man, woman, sud child in the state, regardless of color or condition. The missrovernment of the hourbons had reduced the public schools in every way, depleted the state treasury, prevented fair elections, raised the taxes, and in many other ways injured the eredit of the state. On the other hand, the readjusters had placed the schools upon a level with those of other states, replenished the treasury, purified the ballot, out down expenses, lowered the taxes, and done everything that is possible to restore prosperity to the people. The speaker asked his hearers, and through them the coalitionists of Virginia, whether they intended to make it possible for their present prosperity to continue, or would they return to the old days of bourbonism? He was answered by a perfect storm of nees. The general substantiated all he said from authenticated records, which he had at hand and read. In conclusion, he called upon the coalitionists to buckle on their armor and to strike for justice and equality for Virginia on Tuesday next, and thereby make it possible for her to wheel into line in 1884. The general's words were received with cheers. were received with cheers
